Making War, Making Women Femininity and Duty on the American Home Front, 1941- 1945

By Melissa A. McEuen

University of Georgia Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 344 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.1in. x 0.8in. Drawing on war propaganda, popular advertising, voluminous government records, and hundreds of letters and other accounts written by women in the 1940s, Melissa A. McEuen examines how extensively women's bodies and minds became battlegrounds in the U. S. fight for victory in World War II. Women were led to believe that the nation's success depended on their efforts not just on factory floors, but at their dressing tables, bathroom sinks, and laundry rooms. They were to fill their arsenals with lipstick, nail polish, creams, and cleansers in their battles to meet the standards of ideal womanhood touted in magazines, newspapers, billboards, posters, pamphlets and in the rapidly expanding pinup genre. Scrutinized and sexualized in new ways, women understood that their faces, clothes, and comportment would indicate how seriously they took their responsibilities as citizens. McEuen also shows that the wartime rhetoric of freedom, democracy, and postwar opportunity coexisted uneasily with the realities of a racially stratified society. The context of war created and reinforced whiteness, and McEuen explores how African Americans grappled with whiteness as representing the true American identity. Using perspectives of cultural studies...

Absolutely one of the best pdf I actually have possibly read. Better than ever, though I am quite late in starting to read this one. I realized this book from my dad and I encouraged this ebook to discover.
